LYMAN SCHOOL BOYS BEATEN WITH ROSE

Mrs. Mary Charlton, Victim of Trunk Mystery in Italy

TRAGEDY OF LAKE COMO DEVELOPS SENSATION

Cold? Windy? Rainy? No! Just Invigorating.

Guess Who Thinks So

ON BOARD KAISERLIN AUGUSTE VICTORIA, by Wireless via Cook.
Haven, June 11.
"This is invigorating," said Theodore Roosevelt today as he tramped the deck of the Kaiserlin, while most of the other passengers were complaining at the gray sky, the rain and the cold wind.
Mr. Roosevelt's presence on the liner is attracting comparatively little attention. He planned to spend today quietly, arising late and giving much time to writing. He appeared at 10 o'clock, and after a few minutes on the deck appeared much refreshed. He breakfasted in the dining saloon, returning to his cabin to write. Thus far the voyage has been without incident.

Testimony at Hearing by the Legislative Commit- tee To-day—Mother of Boy Declares He Was Victim.

The boys at the Lyman School are tied up by their thumbs and beaten with a piece of garden hose, according to testimony to-day at the hearing at the State House before the legislative committee investigating the charges that thirteen-year-old John Newman of Cambridge was killed by being beaten about the head and neck. The authorities declare that the boy committed suicide by hanging.

BOLEMAN'S WIDOWED FOR BOSTON THEFT

George W. Coleman of Cambridge, under sentence of death for the murder of a woman, was today taken off the Harvard ship, the Harvard, which was en route to New York, and taken to the State Prison at Sing Sing, N. Y., where he is now confined.

The grand jury reported to Judge Wain that the Harvard had been taken off the ship, and that the man had been taken to the State Prison at Sing Sing, N. Y., where he is now confined.

MILAN, June 11.—All doubt that Mrs. Porter Charlton, victim of the Lake Como trunk murder, was alive when beaten unconscious and jammed in the trunk which was found in the lake, was dispelled by the autopsy held today in the presence of the King's prosecutor. It lasted three hours and was held in secret.

The seven blows on the head were found to be not mortal. The woman's face was beaten also, her nose being broken. She died of suffocation, the physicians decided. The police to-day learned from boatmen that the missing husband, Porter Charlton, made inquiries as to where to find the deepest part of the lake. The boatmen pointed out shallow water where the trunk was found.

POLICE HUNTING FOR YOUNG CHARLTON.

ROME, June 11.—The police authorities here renewed their attempt today to unravel the extraordinary trunk murder mystery in which Mrs. Charlton was the victim. She was an actress, and so Mrs. Mary Castle created much excitement last August in the corridors of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York when she shot a lawyer named Craig.

One arrow has been made. The prisoner is a Russian named Constantine Ispolov. He was a friend of Mrs. Charlton. The authorities are searching for an American who was lately seen in the company of the Russian.

Based on a report by American Consul Charles M. Cagley, who is acting under the direct order of the United States State Department, the best detectives of Italy are searching the country for Porter Charlton, husband of the trunk victim who was last seen alive and thrown into Lake Como to die.

While the authorities believe that Mr. Charlton is still alive he can solve the entire mystery surrounding the death of his wife, the strongest theory is that he was killed by the same person or persons who murdered Mrs. Charlton.

While some of the nation's best detectives were working today along the line of the theory that Ispolov played the part of one of the beautiful woman's former admirers was responsible for her death and possibly that of her husband others were digging deep into what they believe to be a plot to kill and rob American women in Italy.

The main questioning of the detectives was whether the extreme case was a narrow one light on the death of Detective Field, the American girl who was found dead in the Bay of Naples.

Russian Questioned.
Ispolov was today subjected to the third degree. After hours of questioning there was wrung from him a statement which further clarified the case, but which was regarded as significant by the supporters of the jealousy theory.

The main questioning of the detectives was whether the extreme case was a narrow one light on the death of Detective Field, the American girl who was found dead in the Bay of Naples.

DANISH DANCER WHO WAS MARRIED TO-DAY IN LONDON

Adeline Genée, the Danish dancer, who has danced in Boston for the past two seasons, was married today in London, according to special cable dispatches from England, to Percy Pitt, head of the House of New York. The wedding was a notable one, and came after a long and most comfortable courtship.

Miss Genée was for the ceremony a gown of white satin shimmering with pearls. Her train was made wholly of Russian lace. Her four bridesmaids, of whom Edith Pinner is chief, wore white satin and Eclair lace.

There were many fine gifts, some of them from the United States. The "Silver Star" company sent a case of fourteen large steel dishes and the numbers of the company's catalogue, which accompanied the dishes. The gifts were presented by a four-foot mirror framed in massive silver. Mr. Pitt has given a table service of cut glass and Mark Twain a case of "Topsy" liquor glasses.

Christine Nilsson, the Swedish soprano, presented a diamond and emerald necklace, the Danish dancer of New York a magnificent service and the Duchess of Devonshire an antique gold box.

After seven years' service, Professor Charles H. Boyd has resigned the directorship of music at the Tremont Temple Baptist Church. The desire of some members of the church to have a male quartet and in the song service led to the resignation of Professor Boyd.

PARAGON PARK IS OPEN TO-DAY

A new season begins at Paragon Park today, when this amusement resort at New Bedford Beach opens its gates to pleasure seekers. Manager George A. Blair announced that this season he has not only maintained the standard set by former years at the park, but has excelled it in many instances.

Chief among the new features is an electric fountain that is expected to add a wealth of beauty to the park and its surroundings. As well as the main garden, which is the center of life, melody and food, and the free circus, which is provided for the opening days are of the same high quality that has always marked the free entertainment given by Mr. Dodge. It is announced that on Sunday of holiday nights there will be a display of fireworks.

COL. B. S. PARKER, WHO QUALIFIES FOR COLLECTOR

Colonel Wendell S. Parker, the new city collector, who was approved by the Civil Service Commission after that body had rejected former Mayor Hibbard, qualified today the oath of office before City Court today. He died his bond of $75,000. He was then presented to the retiring City Collector, Charles R. Brown, by Secretary "Dick" Field. The new collector will take office Monday.

PARAGON PARK IS OPEN TO-DAY

A new season begins at Paragon Park today, when this amusement resort at New Bedford Beach opens its gates to pleasure seekers. Manager George A. Blair announced that this season he has not only maintained the standard set by former years at the park, but has excelled it in many instances.

Chief among the new features is an electric fountain that is expected to add a wealth of beauty to the park and its surroundings. As well as the main garden, which is the center of life, melody and food, and the free circus, which is provided for the opening days are of the same high quality that has always marked the free entertainment given by Mr. Dodge. It is announced that on Sunday of holiday nights there will be a display of fireworks.

LEND CHURCH FOR BAPTISM OF LITTLE GIRL

Miss Gladys Planders, a recent Lynn High School graduate, whose firm was her principal place of business, was the principal figure in an unusual baptismal ceremony at the Washington Street Baptist Church, Lynn, she was immersed in a tank of lake water by the Rev. J. Franklin Kneiss, pastor of the church.

Miss Planders, though an ardent Methodist, believes in immersing as the proper form of baptism. As the First Methodist Church is not provided with a tank for immersion the officials of the Washington Street Baptist Church offered the use of their church and tank for the ceremony.

Several years ago the Washington Street Baptist Church was destroyed by fire and since Sunday morning, the First Methodist Church congregation at once offered the Baptists the use of their church for the same thing. This offer was thankfully accepted and the Baptists are now re-baptizing.

Miss Planders, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Planders of No. 281 Eastern avenue, graduates from the Lynn High School this June. Her sister Helen is a teacher in the Indian School.

A serious writer, Miss Planders takes active part in the affairs of the First Method Church, of which she is a member,

"I WILL KNOCK OUT JACK JOHNSON IN 10 ROUNDS" JEFF TELLS VAN LOAN

JEFF, READY FOR BATTLE, DECLARES FIGHT WILL NOT LAST TEN ROUNDS

I'm ready to fight to-morrow. I never went into a ring feeling any better than I do now.

What about the fight? It will be a short one. I do not think it will last ten rounds.

I'm not underestimating the other fellow. I have never done that in my life. I'm figuring on my own condition and the kind of a fight I expect to make.

I don't count chickens before they are hatched. But so far as I'm concerned there is going to be some bear while it lasts.

By C. E. VAN LOAN.

JEFFERIE TRAINING CAMP, BOWLING GREEN, June 11.—"I'm ready to fight," said Jim Jeffries, the almost universal question, "What is the real truth about Jim Jeffries?" could only mean.

They say this evening is believing, and the best possible answer to that answer is a tip to the camp among the residents, where the California article is putting the training course to a period of training which lasted more than a year.

Trained down to the powerful fighting of six years ago, without a superior was posed on his big frame, showing all the muscular strength of foot, which made him a nurse among the big men of the ring, his judgment of distance was due to the quivering of a hair, and able to work for two hours without drawing a word breath—this is the present condition of the man who hopes to regain the world's championship next month. By every outward sign in which a man's physical condition is judged, Jim Jeffries is right when he says that he is ready to fight tomorrow.

Big Fellow Aready.

Fifty, with few and all in the world so far as those sporting gentlemen who finger about a training camp—watched Jeffries romp through his morning's work, and went away shaking their heads. Many of them were seeing him for the first time, and the crowd was unanimous in saying, "Give him a cane and a shampoo, and he's ready." Many of these gentlemen were from Missouri.

It might be just as well to come writing about the presence of too many as there is the Jeffries camp. There is just too many who would like to see him.

"Hey, Corbett," pleaded a visitor whose time was limited, "can't you make Jim come on the gloves so that we can see him?"

"Make him put on the gloves," said Corbett, "I'll like to see the fellow who can make Jeffries do anything. He does exactly as he pleases. If he says 'boy, boy, boy,' he says 'boy, boy, boy.' And there you are."

So, though we have in our midst the eminent Corbett, the faithful Farmer Burns with his reminiscences, the fight and only Mr. Chynoweth, the resourceful Roger Connell and a host of minor writers, the only man who does any writing is Jeffries himself and if he wants to fish, he will fish and that is all there is to it.

Late last night Jeffries arrived at the

Even Tad Lands One on Jim Jeffries

The American's famous sporting writer put one across on the "big fellow," as may be guessed by the picture—taken at Jeff's training quarters. But Jeff was careful to make it plain that he let Tad do it.

JACK JOHNSON CALLS CONTRACT WITH LITTLE VOID UNDER THE LAW

By W. H. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 11.—There were two rather unusual happenings at Johnson's camp today. The first was the signing of Johnson and the proprietors of the Hotel Rock Hotel with attachment papers by Attorney Henry Ash, representing Johnson's deposed manager, George Little. This was a proper proceeding, compared to the other, which was nothing less than a mile race between Johnson's new automobile and the champion puging horse, Little Dick.

Victor Verthine, driver of Little Dick, was the challenger. He weighed 1000 lbs. with a standing start he could beat Johnson in his automobile over a quarter mile of ground.

"Victor," cried Johnson, jumping into the car, "I'll show you the difference between a man and a horse." Johnson, who was sitting in the car, was in line with Johnson's automobile.

"Victor," yelled Verthine starting away with a good clip, but Johnson had "lost" his car. It ran about 100 yards and then stopped. Johnson, who was sitting in the car, was in line with Johnson's automobile.

They are Nailing Up the Windows in Canfield's Gambling House

The Gambling Machinery Goes to Mexico. Farewell to the Thieves' Nest in Saratoga

The other day men were at work nailing up the windows, packing up the gambling apparatus—the machinery for swindling the public—and shipping it down to Mexico.

Race-track gambling is dead all over the State of New York. And that big gambling nest that drew the rascals, the idlers, the immoral women and the generally worthless men to Saratoga, and, once there, to Canfield's gambling house at night, will travel there no more.

A good thing for the country and a good thing for Saratoga.

It is not pleasant to know that this particular plague spot is to be transplanted to Mexico. We are glad to have the thing out of THIS country, but sorry to have it moved to a neighbor.

However, they have a fairly solid kind of government down in Mexico, and it is quite likely that, before the roulette wheels shall have been running there long, the Mexican government will inform the proper individuals that they can't transplant their smelly sore from the United States into Mexican soil—and the "gentlemen" that live by robbery and trickery will have to move again.

THE LIFE AND ADVENTURES OF A CERTAIN PARROT might be worth the study of Theodore Roosevelt.

We mean the parrot that various aggregations of citizens climbed back on its perch with all its feathers torn out after the fight with the bulldog and said: "I know what the matter with me! I talk too much." When Mr. Roosevelt discovers—in a little while—just what the parrot thinks about his conduct in Rome and his desire for more fire and more swords in Egypt, and in other places where men are trying to be independent, he will know how that parrot felt when the fuss was over.

A Bewildered Oxford Doctor

Mr. Roosevelt as an Oxford "don" follows a learned labyrinth without a clue, and comes out at the point where he went in.

He decides that all nations, the noble as well as the base, live their span and die—just as individuals do.

We are to learn from his "biological analogies in history" that the death of every nation is as sure as taxes.

But why it is that no State can keep on growing and improving Mr. Roosevelt doesn't know. And he says nobody else does.

He admits that we can stave off the bitter end for a while—by raising the birth rate, keeping a "fighting edge" and eschewing "luxury." But it will be only a postponement.

He gives his scholastic audience to understand that he has no vulgar illusions about the permanence of democracy.

Having put on his doctor's gown, he makes a dead set for pale scholarship, and wins the plaudits of all the pedants by proving that nothing in history can be proved.

But whatever may have been the affectation of Mr. Roosevelt's manner, there need be no doubt about the solid reality of his ignorance.

With all his display of erudition, there are well-taught schoolboys in America who would put Mr. Roosevelt's sickly, Byronic sociology to shame.

Modern social science has got beyond the wailing sentimentality of Lord Byron's lines: "First freedom and then glory. When these fail, wealth, vice, corruption—despotism at last. And history, with all its volumes vast, hath but one page."

History does not move in fatal, inevitable cycles.

No nation ever died a natural death.

Those that die commit suicide.

An Oxford doctor of civil law—who goes up and down the world doctoring the laws of all nations—ought to know that nations die not by natural law, but because they make laws in defiance of natural justice.

Nations die of monopoly.

They die because they frame their customs and their minds in such manner as to promote chicanery to power and to destroy the living of honest men.

There are still people in America who believe in the perpetuity of the national life—believe that it is possible to mobilize the forces of free government for a career of endless progress.

These men still expect that America will escape from the social deadlock of the Old World and from that national self-destruction of which Mr. Roosevelt has made himself the melancholy prophet.

They are free from the scholastic superstition that a nation must die because a horse or a hunter does.

They are forced by no "biological analogies" to assent to the final conception of corruption.

Americans of this sort are not looking to any Oxford doctor for political leadership—and the bewildered questionings of Mr. Roosevelt do not trouble their thoughts.

Widespread Interest in the Boom South Boston Contest

The American's "Boom South Boston" contest has yielded a splendid crop of interesting plans and suggestions for the improvement and building up of that section of the city.

Hundreds of letters have come from men, women and children. All of them have been regardless of the real needs of the district and instructive in their discussion of practical means and methods for bringing about the reforms recommended.

On account of the great number and general excellence of the contributions, the judges have had a difficult task in selecting the prize winners, which will be announced in the Sunday American.

This "Boom South Boston" contest has been a feature in many respects.

It proved surprisingly popular from the start and developed the liveliest kind of interest.

It demonstrated a decided loyalty on the part of the South Boston residents of to-day and of the past.

It directed an attention to the needs and demands of the peninsular district that must bring good results.

It brought forth the views of schoolboys, schoolgirls and school-teachers. Merchants, manufacturers, doctors, lawyers, clergymen, firemen, policemen, railroad men, street railway men, clerks in stores, men in the shops and building trades and women in the homes gave serious thought to South Boston.

And out of it all came many original and helpful suggestions as to how it could be made a better residential and a more prosperous business place.

This was a contest without coupons. It was not a popularity struggle. It was a battle of thought, and the contributors of the best practical ideas are the winners in the order of their merit.

Interest in the contest was widespread. Not for many years has so much consideration been paid to South Boston. Not only from every part of Boston, but also from many sections of the State and even from other States letters have been received.

It seems to be the consensus of opinion that South Boston has splendid natural advantages for homes, for business and for shipping, but that development has been slighted; that there should be better street approaches, more modern home opportunities, increased transportation facilities for South Boston residents to the heart of the city, an improved railroad and bridge system and a building up of the waterfront.

The American is glad that it conducted the contest. It is pleasing to receive letters of thanks from many South Boston people for evoking such an outburst of public interest.

Newspapers as well as individuals like to know that their efforts are appreciated. Appreciation is particularly gratifying when those efforts are along the municipal betterment lines which are being pushed forward by such public-spirited organizations as these of South Boston.

For that reason the American is pleased to acknowledge its appreciation of the vote of thanks passed by the Andrew Square Improvement Association in recognition of the opportunity afforded by the contest to boom South Boston.
